DEVOTED TO THE PROPAGANDA OF FREEDOM OF THOUGHT

SOMETIMES.

(By Julia Clark Coon.)

Sometime the sun will shine again,
And fields will wave with golden grain;
Sometime the lanes that stretch so bare,
Will bloom again with flowers fair.

Sometime shall Justice be installed,
And Might and Priestcraft be recalled,
Sometime, O, Truth, thy power shall reign,
While Falsehood hides her head in shame.

Sometime all chains shall broken be,
And Mankind rise, supreme and free;
Sometime, when swords by Right are sheathed,
And Womanhood with Honor wreathed.
